END OF CHAPTER ONE

THE INDIAN AND THE WHITE MAN

TO GET a true picture of the American Indian has been a most difficult task. In the minds of some people, the Indian has been regarded as a cruel savage, always on the warpath. The attitude has been expressed in the saying, "The best Indian is a dead one." On the other hand there have been people who have felt that the Indian is a child of nature, unspoiled, and it would be best to let him live his own life in his own way. One of the first attempts to show the mind of the Indian took place in the year 1817. In a book called "The Columbian Orator" which contained a variety of original and selected pieces to help in the Art of Eloquence, there appeared one entitled, "Dialogue Between A White Inhabitant of the United States and An Indian." It is reproduced here, without any changes. In your mind's eye, you see the White Man and the Indian exchanging views:

White Man: Your friends, the inhabitants of the United States, wish to bury the tomahawk, and live in peace with the Indian tribes.

Indian: Justice is the Parent of peace. The Indians love war only as they love justice. Let us enjoy our rights, and be content with yours, and we will hang the tomahawk and scalping-knife upon the tree of peace, and sit down together under its branches.

White Man: This is what we desire, and what is your interest as well as ours to promote. We have often made leagues with you; they have been as often broken. If justice were your guide, and peace your desire, they would be better regarded.

Indian: The White Men are robbers. We do not choose to be at peace with robbers; it is more to our honor to be at war with them.

White Man: It is in our power to punish the aggressors; we have more warriors than the Indians; but we choose to employ arguments rather than force.

Indian: I have, heard the arguments of White Men; they are a fair bait; but their intentions are a bearded hook. You call us brothers, but you treat us like beasts; you wish to trade with us, that you may cheat us; you would give us peace, but you would take our lands, and leave us nothing worth fighting for.

White Man: The White Men want your lands; but they are willing to pay for them. The great Parent has given the earth to all men in common to improve for their sustenance. He delights in the numbers of his children. If any have a superior claim, it must be those, who, by their arts and industry, can support the greatest number on the smallest territory.

Indian: This is the way you talk; you act differently. You have good on your tongue, but bad in your heart. I have been among White Men, I know as much about them as you do about Red Men. What would your people say, if poor men should go to a rich man, and tell him, the great Parent has given the earth to all men in common, we have not enough land; you have more than you need; he delights in the number of his children; your great farm supports but few; by our superior arts and industry, it would support many; you may move to one corner of your land; that is sufficient for you; we will take the rest. We will live together as brothers, if you will be at peace with us; if not, we have more warriors than you; it is in our power to punish the aggressors. Should you call this just? No! No!

White Man: Surely not.

Indian: Then justice among White Men and Red Men is different: will you show me the difference? I thought justice was our friend as well as yours.

White Man: We are governed by laws that protect our property, and punish the disturbers of peace.

Indian: Then by what law do you encroach upon our property, and disturb our peace?

If you consider us as your brothers, your laws ought to protect us as well as yourselves.

White Man: Our ways of living are different from yours. We have many employments and much property: your manners are simple, your possessions small; our laws, of course, will not apply to your circumstances.

Indian: I know you have many laws on paper and some that ought to make the paper blush. We have but few; they are founded in justice and written on the heart. They teach us to treat a stranger as our friend; to open our doors and spread our tables to the needy. If a White Man come among us, our heart is in our hand; all we have is his; yet you call us savages! But that must mean something better than civilized, if you are civilized.

White Man: We do not impeach your hospitality, nor censure your humanity in many instances; but how can you justify your promiscuous slaughter of the innocent and guilty, your cruel massacres of helpless wives and children who never injured you?

Indian: If a man provokes me to fight with him, I will break his head if I can: if he is stronger than I, then I must be content to break his arm or his finger. When the war-whoop is sounded, and we take up the tomahawk, our hearts are one; our cause is common; the wives and children of our enemies are our enemies also; they have the same blood, and we have the same thirst for it. If you wish your wives and children should escape our vengeance, be honest and friendly in your dealings with us, if they have ruffians for their protectors, they must not expect safety.

White Man: We have both the same claim from each other; friendship and justice are all we require. Our ideas on these subjects are different; perhaps they will never agree. On one side, ferocity will not be dictated by humanity, nor stubbornness by reason, on the other, knowledge is not disposed to be advised by ignorance, nor power to stoop to weakness.

Indian: I believe we shall not make peace by our talks. If the contention is, who had the most humanity, let Him who made us judge. We have no pretensions to superior knowledge; we ask, who knows best how to use what they have? If we contend for power, our arms must decide; the leaves must wither on the tree of peace; we shall cut it down with the battle-axe, and stain the green grass that grows under it with your blood.

White Man: You know the blessings of peace, and the calamities of war. If you wish to live secure in your wigwams, and to rove the forest unmolested, cultivate our friendship. Break not into our houses in the defenseless hours of sleep. Let no more of our innocent friends be dragged from their protectors, and driven into the inhospitable wilderness; or what is still more inhuman, fall victims to your unrelenting barbarity! If you prefer war, we shall drive its horrors into your own settlements. The sword shall destroy your friends, and the fire consume your dwellings.

Indian: We love peace; we love our friends, we love all men, as much as you. When your fathers came over the big water, we treated them as brothers; they had nothing, peace and plenty were among us. All the land was ours, from the east to the west water; from the mountains of snow in the north, to the burning path of the sun in the south. They were made welcome to our land and to all we possessed. To talk like White Men, they were beggars, and we their benefactors; they were tenants at will, and we their landlords. But we nourished a viper in our bosoms. You have poisoned us by your luxury; spread contention among us by your subtlety, and death by your treachery. The Indians have but two predominant passions, friendship and revenge. Deal with us as friends, and you may fish in our rivers or hunt in our forests. Treat us not like servants; we shall never own you as masters. If you provoke us, our vengeance shall pursue you. We shall drink your blood; you may spill ours. We had rather die in honorable war, than live in dishonorable peace!

... COST OF A LION HUNT IS HIGH... IT INVOLVES
1. A GUIDE HUNTER
2. HIS PACK OF HOUNDS
3. A CAMP HELPER
4. HORSES AND EQUIPMENT. . .

... IT IS ONE OF THE MOST EXCITING OF ALL SPORTS AND IN SHOOTING A BIG CAT, YOU'VE BAGGED ONE OF THE RAREST OF WESTERN TROPHIES...

... HE BEGAN TO VISIT ALL THE JAILS IN THE WEST AND TALK TO THEIR INMATES. WHEN HE FOUND A MAN WHO WAS ABOUT TO BE RELEASED, HE INVITED HIM TO JOIN HIS CLUB...

...THUS IT WAS THAT THE OUTLAWS BENEVOLENT SOCIETY WAS FORMED AND FLOURISHED A DOZEN YEARS. CHAPTERS WERE FORMED THROUGHOUT THE WEST AND MANY AN IMPORTANT LAWYER AND RANCHER COULD, IF HE WOULD, ADMIT THAT HE WAS AN ALUMNI....

WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT PIMPLES

Acne, Blackheads, and other externally caused Skin Blemishes

WHEN pimply skin is your problem, the first thing to get straight is that you can and should do something about it. To develop the attractiveness of your face is not mere vanity. It is an "open sesame" towards bringing the real YOU closer to other people and giving your personality the poise and confidence it needs. Your good qualities — intelligence, character, dignity — all go to naught... are completely cancelled out by a skin that "nobody loves to touch." Remember, the YOU that people see first is your face.

SKIN PROBLEMS DEMAND IMMEDIATE CARE

Medical statistics tell us that blemished skin usually occurs from adolescence on through adult life. The problem at the adolescent stage is serious enough to deserve attentive care as a family matter. In adulthood, when life's responsibilities are so much weightier, it is doubly important to exert great effort to eliminate these blemishes. And, there is no better time to get pimples under control than now

DON'T ABUSE SKIN

The first instinctive reaction to pimples and blackheads is to squeeze them out with your fingers. A bit of experimentation along these lines soon provides convincing proof that this succeeds only in inflaming your skin and spreading the infection. Under no circumstances should pimples and blackheads ever be squeezed.

MICROSCOPE SHOWS IMPORTANT BASIS FOR EXTERNALLY CAUSED PIMPLES AND BLACKHEADS

Let's take a look through the microscope to see what's behind those unsightly pimples. The high-powered lenses show your skin coated with a covering which originated from two sources—one, internally and the other, externally.

The internal substances on your skin include dead cells, residue from the sweat glands, and a high quantity of oil excreted by the sebaceous glands. A most important by-product in skin disorders occurs when thousands of these tiny sebaceous glands discharge more oil than the skin can use for lubrication. Unless special care is given, the oil forms a heavy film which attracts foreign matter to your skin much as any oil mop picks up dust. These infectious external substances may be classified into three general groups:

1. Airborne substances such as dust, pollens, condensation products of smoke, vapors, etc
2. Materials brought in contact with the skin, such as tiny fragments of clothing, bedding, cosmetics.
3. Micro-organisms such as bacteria and fungi.

See the difference between a healthy skin and a pimply skin in the microscopic reproductions below.

Normal skin

B.

Sick, pimply skin

Diagram A shows a normal-size, smoothly functioning sebaceous gland. Diagram B pictures sick, pimply skin. Notice that the sebaceous gland is a swollen mass of trapped oil, waste and infectious bacteria.

TRY THIS SENSIBLE WAY

Two sensible aims to achieve in controlling this skin condition are: to clear the pores of clogging matter, and to inhibit the excessive oiliness of the skin. Toward these ends, Dornol Products' research makes available two formulas. One is to aid in thorough cleansing by highly detergent penetration which simplifies the removal of waste and foreign matter. The other is to discourage oiliness with clinically-proved ingredients, and to kill infectious bacteria often associated with externally caused pimples and blackheads.

BLEMISHES COVERED UP

To remove the distressing embarrassment of these skin blemishes, the second Dornol formula exerts a "cover-up" action on your broken out skin while the medication does its work. This, plus its pleasant odor, will spare you the mental distress which is associated with unsightly, malodorous, medicated preparations. Imagine! You can apply this Dornol formula to your skin by day and face the immediate present with greater confidence in your appearance, while secure in the knowledge that medication is acting to remove old blemishes and keep away new ones. What this "cover-up" action alone is worth in peace of mind is beyond calculation. No longer need prying eyes make you wince with humiliation and misery. Now because of this wonderful feature of the Dornol treatment, you can put your best foot forward... at once!
